

TELEPATHY -The conversation starter!

Hiding in plain sight is an electrical circuit in the oldest part of our brain which functions as an antenna to transmit and receive telepathic messages.

Telepathic ability is as ubiquitous as the common cold but has been hidden away from polite society for centuries. Surprisingly, eighty percent of my patients had received or sent a "thought message" to an old friend or relative! The stories they told sent me on a quest to find how our mind does this, for it is surely a very human sense.

The book follows my journey through our electrical body, our magnetic sense, brain-computer-interfacing, neuroscience, the research conducted for the CIA and the experiences of ordinary people who had contact with loved ones at the time of death, dreamed of places they later visited, were warned of danger or simply said "I was just thinking of you," when a person phoned after months or years.

Nothing in life is to be feared, if is only to be understood. Now is the time to understand more, so that we may fear less" - Marie Curie

Dr. Dianne Cartwright, a Brisbane native, graduated from the University of Queensland with a B.Sc Hons and MBBs Hons and is a Fellow of the Royal Australian College of General Practitioners.

She practised as a GP in Cairns for many years.

Throughout her life, she had personal experiences of ESP including telepathy. Following her retirement she researched the neuroscientific literature to find a plausible explanation for these abilities, described in this book.
